Navy—Maybe Leave Russia's Nuclear Missile ... The U.S. Navy in the Cold War. World War II had proved that the battleship, the main weapon of sea forces during the first half of the 20th century, was no longer the decisive fleet element because of the ascendancy of air power, both land-based and carrier-based. The heavily armoured, heavily gunned, but relatively sluggish battleship had no real utility within navy task forces and fleets ... The United States Navy - The U.S. Navy in the Cold War ... ARCHIVES Abstract. American Cold War planning experienced important failures in strategic intelligence and in the way planners used that intelligence. These shortcomings were overcome through massive material investment, technological advantage, and good fortune, but in the twenty-first-century era of great-power competition the Navy cannot count on these advantages.
